

In Memory of Robert “ Buffalo Bob” Casale

Long Time Editor of HixNews.com

Bob Casale could easily be called “Mr. Hicksville” due directly to his deep love of Hicksville and the graduates of Hicksville High School. Bob was the long-time editor of the online monthly newsletter known as HixNews.com which provided former residents of Hicksville with numerous opportunities to re-connect with the community even though they now lived thousands of miles away.

HixNews.com is a monthly online storehouse of information that details the events in the lives of Hicksville High School alumni such as their travels around the country and world as well as celebration of birthdays, anniversaries, and sad announcements of classmates who had passed on.

If Bob knew your birthday or anniversary, you could expect an online greeting to show up in your email. If a class reunion took place and members sent him pictures, Bob created a video of that event. He created for alumni fond memories of growing up in Hicksville and if you were looking for a former classmate, he tried his best to bring old friends back together again.

HixNews.com was Bob’s passion and he brought happiness to thousands of subscribers each month. Old and New pictures of Hicksville throughout the years were published and HHS alumni could reminisce about decades past growing up in this wonderful community.

Bob was a navy veteran, having served our nation for 10 years and left as a first class petty officer. He was one of the founders of Liberty Plumbing and Heating Supply, Inc., retiring from this Hicksville company in 2008.

Rest in Peace, Bob and sincere thanks for your service to the Hicksville community and the high school you loved so much.
